Quality Systems, Inc. Recognized in Eight Categories of the 13th Annual American Business AwardsSM

Company Acknowledged Across Management, Company and Human Resources Categories

IRVINE, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Quality Systems, Inc. (NASDAQ: QSII) announced today that it was recognized in eight categories of the 13th Annual American Business AwardsSM (ABAs) program.

The Company earned Stevie® awards, which are the awards bestowed in this competition, in various categories, including those focused on company performance, management teams and functional areas, such as human resources. Quality Systems and its NextGen Healthcare (QSI/NextGen Healthcare) subsidiary’s recent restructuring, along with its newly revamped human resources department, were acknowledged in this year’s competition.

The American Business Awards are the nation’s premier business awards program. All organizations operating in the U.S. are eligible to submit entries including public and private, for-profit and non-profit, large and small. More than 3,300 entries from companies of all sizes and in virtually every industry were submitted for consideration across 200+ categories this year.

"Since its inception 13 years ago, The American Business Awards have been acknowledging companies of all shapes and sizes, across all industries nationwide, allowing them to receive recognition for the hard work put forth by leadership and professionals of nearly all levels. We are proud that our Company's nearly 3,000 employees worldwide were part of that process in this year's competition. Quality Systems delivered double-digit growth in fiscal 2015, demonstrating the efforts and diligence of our entire team across all functional areas of the company," noted Steven T. Plochocki, president and chief executive officer.

"Special credit goes to Donna Greene, our senior vice president of human resources, for her role and that of her team, in creating a centralized, shared services human resources function. We are pleased that all the initiatives that came to fruition companywide in 2014 did not go unnoticed in this year's program," Plochocki explained.

Michael Gallagher, president of The Stevie Awards, commented on Quality Systems' involvement in the ABAs: "Since the founding of the Stevie Awards, Quality Systems has been a participant, witnessing firsthand the value in and honor of being recognized by our various programs. The acknowledgement the Company received this year - as in years past - captured the true essence of the success of the organization and its dedicated workforce. That is really what our awards program is all about, and Quality Systems represents the epitome of a company that truly understands the significance of earning recognition for its organization, its products, its programs and its people."

The 2015 American Business Awards are presented at two awards events. The first was on Monday, June 22nd, 2015 in Chicago, and the second program, will be held on Friday, September 11th, 2015 in San Francisco.

More than 250 executives across the country participated in the judging process to determine the finalists and Stevie Award winners.

SAFE HARBOR PROVISIONS FOR FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This news release may contain forward-looking statements within the meaning of the federal securities laws, including but not limited to, statements regarding future events, developments in the healthcare sector and regulatory framework, the Company’s future performance, as well as management’s expectations, beliefs, intentions, plans, estimates or projections relating to the future (including, without limitation, statements concerning revenue, net income, and earnings per share). Risks and uncertainties exist that may cause the results to differ materially from those set forth in these forward-looking statements. Factors that could cause the anticipated results to differ from those described in the forward-looking statements and additional risks and uncertainties are set forth in Part I, Item A of our most recent Annual Report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2015, including but not limited to: the volume and timing of systems sales and installations; length of sales cycles and the installation process; the possibility that products will not achieve or sustain market acceptance; seasonal patterns of sales and customer buying behavior; impact of incentive payments under The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act on sales and the ability of the Company to meet continued certification requirements; the development by competitors of new or superior technologies; the timing, cost and success or failure of new product and service introductions, development and product upgrade releases; undetected errors or bugs in software; product liability; changing economic, political or regulatory influences in the health-care industry; changes in product-pricing policies; availability of third-party products and components; competitive pressures including product offerings, pricing and promotional activities; the Company's ability or inability to attract and retain qualified personnel; possible regulation of the Company's software by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration; changes of accounting estimates and assumptions used to prepare the prior periods' financial statements; and general economic conditions. A significant portion of the Company's quarterly sales of software product licenses and computer hardware is concluded in the last month of a fiscal quarter, generally with a concentration of such revenues earned in the final ten business days of that month. Due to these and other factors, the Company's revenues and operating results are very difficult to forecast. A major portion of the Company’s costs and expenses, such as personnel and facilities, are of a fixed nature and, accordingly, a shortfall or decline in quarterly and/or annual revenues typically results in lower profitability or losses. As a result, comparison of the Company's period-to-period financial performance is not necessarily meaningful and should not be relied upon as an indicator of future performance. The Company undertakes no obligation to publicly update any forward-looking statements, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.
